Proposed Outline

- I. Altached is my proposed outline. The test, in each paragraph, will obviously have to be a brief, precise distillate of the main points in the argument and conclusions advanted in the accompanying fuller discussion of each corresponding topic.

 Even so, it will not be easy to shee-horn this all into twenty pages, but I am emitarited on the attempt.
- 2. I think the synthesis paper (which, itself, will be espectially a compandium of conclusions) should be professed by those or four general conclusions which endoaver to access the total Victness situation in brief compans. These, too, I am taking a gut at for your consideration.
- 3. Using Mr. Smith's schools. I will endeavor to have a draft to you sensetime on Friday. 19 May (or Sainsday morning at the latest), on we can review it together on Monday.
